Roosevelt Instructs the Special Fact Board to Consider New Rail
Points

Coal Group Meets

Three-Man Board Has
New York Meeting
About Coal

(By The Associated Press)
Strike control legislation developed swiftly today in House and Senate committees while boards appointed by President Roosevelt undertook to settle critical labor disputes involving captive coal mines and the nation's railroads.

Elsewhere, a freight handler's strike in Chicago was settled, but 8,500 A. F. L. machinists in the St. Louis area remained away from their jobs in what an O.P.M. labor expert called "the most important and serious labor tie-up anywhere in the nation."

Mr. Roosevelt took an unprecedented step yesterday by instructing his special emergency fact-finding board in the railroad wage dispute to reconvene and review some new facts which he said had come to light since the board reported to him November 5.

A preliminary meeting was scheduled today at the White House, the new hearings were to begin Friday, and a fresh report to the President was requested by Monday—six days before the strike deadline set by the five operating brotherhoods.

The 350,000 operating employees whose present pay rates range upward from $5.06 a day had demanded 30 per cent increases, and called a strike for December 7 after the President's board recommended a temporary increase of 7 1/2 per cent in their scales.

The 900,000 railroad employees who belong to the 14 non-operating brotherhoods asked boosts of 30 to 34 cents an hour over their current range of 35 to 85 cents.

The board recommended a 9-cent increase, which the unions rejected without setting an actual strike deadline.

The managements of the various railroads agreed, with considerable reluctance, to the increases recommended by the board.

Coal Board Meets

Another three-man board assembled in New York to arbitrate the captive coal mine dispute, under an advance agreement that the decision would be binding. The board members are John L. Lewis, president of the C. I. O. United Mine Workers, Benjamin Fairless, president of the United States Steel Corporation, and Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the United States Conciliation Service.

They were to decide whether all men who work in the captive coal mines which produce fuel for steel mills must be required to join the union in order to hold their jobs. The U.M.W., which claims 95 per cent membership among the captive mine employees, conducted a week-long strike on the issue. The walkout ended Monday after President Roosevelt obtained the agreement to arbitrate.

Sentiment for legislation to curb strikes in defense industries continued to run strong in both houses of Congress.

Senator Glass (D-Va.) said no time should be lost in passing "strict regulatory legislation" to halt such work stoppages and he added "we ought to penalize these strikers."

Senator Connally (D-Tex.) saw in his own "seize-freeze" bill a simple and acceptable remedy to the problem. It would permit the government to take over struck defense plants, freezing the open or closed shop status while the government remained in control.

A special board would be empowered to adjust wages during such a period.

Said Senator Hatch (D-N.M.): "We ought to pass the Connally bill and send it to the House. If the House wants to pass a bill in some other form, then the differences could be ironed out in conference."

Connally hoped for judiciary committee approval of the legislation Friday, and Senate consideration Monday.

On the House side, Acting Chairman Ramspeck (D. Ga.) of the labor committee was preparing legislation calling for conciliation and mediation of labor disputes, followed at last, in the President's discretion, by compulsory arbitration. He said he hoped to have the draft of such a bill perfected by Friday.

Another bill, revised since its introduction last spring by Rep. Vinson (D. Ga.), would compel cooling off periods before strikes could take effect in defense plants.

Speaker Rayburn has announced that labor legislation will be given precedence as soon as the price control bill is disposed of—probably by next week.

Settlement of the Chicago freight handlers' strike was announced on Page Eight.

Fred G. Wheeler, 50, (center) Farmington, Me., cattle dealer, leaves jail for the court house at Farmington for a session of his trial for the slaying of Florence H. Buzzell, 20, of New Sharon, Me. Miss Buzzell was found shot to death last June in a field near her brother's home.

Supervisors Raise Hurley Tax Rate Over Protests; Wood Says It's 'Peculiar'

Two More Nurses Are Suggested By Dr. Ingraham

A recommendation that Kingston's health department employ two additional health nurses at a cost of about $4,000 a year, was contained in a communication from Dr. Hollis Ingraham, district state health officer, which was read Tuesday evening by Mayor C. J. Heiselman, at the monthly meeting of the Board of Health.

The mayor in commenting on the communication said it was something to consider when the board prepared its budget for next year.

Dr. Ingraham in his communication wrote that the Board of Supervisors had taken steps to provide for the employment of 12 public health nurses to cover a population of 56,000, and that for the city to provide a number equivalent to those employed by the county, would require five additional nurses. Dr. Ingraham said that the city already employed one public health nurse that if an additional two nurses were engaged that the state health department would be satisfied.

DuMond Tells Farmers They Need Adequate Voice in Public Affairs

C. C. DuMond of Ulster Park, president of the New York State Farm Bureau Federation, speaking at the annual meeting of the federation in the Onondaga Hotel, Syracuse, yesterday, said, "Most of us New York state farmers consider ourselves conservative and are proud of it."

"We expect to continue to believe that individual thrift, integrity and good management should have their proper reward. Times are changing so rapidly, however, that we cannot hope to get along without an adequate voice in public affairs. Farmers cannot survive in an economy controlled by pressure groups unless they have spokesmen of their own and support them by organization. The sooner we realize that we cannot 'stay home on our farm and mind our own business' and let someone else run things for us, the better."

Rate Is Cut From 65 Per Cent to 62; Town Officer Objects to 'Whip Lash'

Supervisor Arthur Wood of the town of Hurley, the only Democratic supervisor representing a county township on the Board of Supervisors next year, and Supervisor Raymond Schuler of the Fourth Ward of the city of Kingston were the only two members of the minority party who verbally opposed adoption of the "equalization table" Tuesday evening.

The table as offered by Chairman Cashdollar, chairman of the committee on equalization, was adopted by a vote of 21 to 2 with Supervisors Duffy of the town of Kingston and Supervisor Schuler of the Fourth Ward not voting. The only two opposing votes were cast by Supervisor Wood of Hurley and Supervisor O'Neill of the Thirteenth Ward.

Calls It 'Peculiar'

When the table was offered for approval Supervisor Wood said it seemed peculiar that since he had assumed office in the town of Hurley that the ratio in the town of Hurley had been so wrong that it had been necessary to change it three times. If the assessments in the town were wrong, then they had been wrong for six or eight or ten years. He said a just rate had been 78 until he assumed office then when he took office the "whip lash" had been applied to the town of Hurley and the ratio cut down to the present 62 per cent for next year over 65 per cent for the present year. He concluded his protest by saying that since he was the only Democratic supervisor to be elected outside the city of Kingston at the last election, and he was proud to have been elected, that the board had seen fit to cut him down again.

Axis Says British Are 'Annihilated' South of Rezegh; Reds Are Set Back; U. S. - Japanese Talks at Crucial Stage

Both Governments Are Silent on Nature of Discussions; Status Is Uncertain

Tokyo Is Gloomy

U. S. Presses Nationals to Leave Japan at Earliest Moment

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP)—The extended diplomatic conversations between the United States and Japan were reported today to be close to their critical final stages.

Both governments held to their official silence on the exact status of the discussions, but an atmosphere of uncertainty persisted. It took on increased gravity with the news that the U. S. consulate in Tokyo had issued a new and urgent warning for all Americans to leave Japan promptly. A similar appeal was reported addressed to Americans remaining in China. And Tokyo press comment manifested deeper pessimism.

While there have been no developments to indicate that the two countries were any closer to a break or an understanding than they were before the arrival of Saburo Kurosu, Tokyo's special envoy, diplomatic quarters forecast decisive action in the immediate future.

Japan's internal political situation is such, it was said, that a decision cannot be much longer delayed by the Japanese government.

These reports led to the belief that the final diplomatic cards would go on the table in one of the subsequent meetings of Secretary of State Hull with Kurosu and Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, the Japanese ambassador. The three men were expected to hold another conversation some time today.

Tokyo Outlook Is Gloomy

Tokyo, Nov. 26 (AP)—Secretary Hull's continued conferences with envoys of the other A.B.C.D. powers caused authoritative Japanese quarters to take a gloomy view today of the outlook for Washington negotiations seeking a lessening of Japanese-American tension.

This coincided with renewed pressure by United States authorities to get their nationals to leave Japan.

Referring to the talks between Hull and Japan's envoys, Saburo Kurosu and Ambassador Admiral Nomura, Domei news agency with close official connections, said:

"The general feeling among well-informed circles is that the Japan-United States talks cannot be regarded with undue optimism, especially in view of Mr. Hull's conferences with representatives of the A.B.C.D. powers (America, Britain, China, Dutch East Indies)."

Nazis May Raze City of Belgrade

White House Says Act May Come to Check Serb Guerrillas

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP)—The White House disclosed today that government intelligence services had reported Germany was preparing to raze Belgrade, capital of conquered Yugoslavia, because the Nazis are convinced that the Chetniks, Serbian guerrillas, are using it as a base of operations.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said the report had come in last night. Asked the purpose of disclosing military intelligence, he said he expected to see the report printed. But when he was asked whether President Roosevelt hoped thereby to deter the German plans, Early said he would not say so even if that was the President's desire.

The reports, Early said, according to the declaration of a high government official, declare that "the bombardment to which Belgrade has been subjected will be nothing to compare with what is now in store for the city."

"The Germans have decided to raze Belgrade, which will be surrounded by troops and exposed to bombardment by artillery and from the air. Those giving the government these reports are convinced that the Germans have decided to carry this attack on in the same way as they have done previously in the city of Shabatz."

Axis Shows Anger At U. S. Decision On Dutch Guiana

Hitler and Buddies Must Get Idea America Means Business, Even as Affects Tokyo

By DeWITT MacKENZIE (Freeman Special News Service)

Herr Hitler's camp would appear from Nazi and Fascist newspaper comment to be as much exercised over the American occupation of Dutch Guiana as any other recent development—and taking the long view of the war situation perhaps the wisemen of the Axis are right.

No clearer indication of the powerful moral effect of this move could be had than has been evidenced in the angry outburst of the German and Italian press. That moral effect, which reaches round the world and touches not only the Axis and its supporters but their enemies, would seem to be important at this juncture than the military consideration.

We have a striking demonstration of the determination of the United States to protect not only its own interests but those of other nations in this hemisphere. We also have a display of Pan-American solidarity, to raise the American cooperation in Brazil's quick approval, and that's of vast importance to the outcome of the war.

The general effect must be to impress all nations with the idea that Uncle Sam means business. One would expect it to encourage Pan-American solidarity, to raise the morale of the Allies and their friends, and to provide food for reflection among those nations like Turkey which are trying to tread a straight path of neutrality.

Might Impress Tokyo

This sending of Yankee troops into Surinam might even have a salutary effect on the American-Japanese crisis. By an association of ideas Tokyo will be unable to escape the thought that Dutch Guiana is a sister colony of the Dutch East Indies, which figure so prominently in the far eastern imbroglio.

Last but far from least—and this likely is what worries Hitler most—the American move is calculated to have a restraining influence on the Vichy government which just now is under heavy pressure to make more concessions to Germany. Among the things (Continued on Page 14)

Poletti Discusses State's New Law as Aimed at Carelessness

New York, Nov. 26 (AP)—A "staggering total of financial loss" accompanies the nation's traffic death and injury record which, in itself, offers "almost unbelievable testimony to our carelessness and indifference," Lieutenant Governor Charles Poletti asserted today.

Discussing the new motor vehicle safety-responsibility law before the New York Board of Trade, Poletti pointed out the traffic toll was 2,500 killed, 100,000 injured and a total financial loss of approximately $120,000,000 in the state alone last year.

Dr. Clarke Points to Area Drouth As Having Effect on Milk Supply

Dr. Harold Clarke, milk inspector of the Board of Health in his report to the board of the tests made of milk sold in Kingston during October, stated that "there is a very severe shortage of milk" which was the reason why so few cream samples had been procured for testing at the city laboratory.

"The desperate shortage of water on the farms greatly accounts for the higher average of bacteria" wrote Dr. Clarke in his report. The report was filed.

The report of the registrar for October showed that there had been 67 births and 56 deaths recorded in the city that month, as compared with 64 births and 47 deaths in October, 1940.

It was stated that in the request of Mrs. David Farber for a permit to resume slaughtering cattle at the Farber slaughter house, which had been closed since the death of Mr. Farber, that one of (Continued on Page Two)

British Anticipate Big Battle at Rezegh, 10 Miles South of Tobruk in Libya

Gains Are Cited

Russians Claim Red Thrusts Near Rostov in Ukraine

(By The Associated Press)

Axis front-line dispatches declared today that British troops south of Rezegh, scene of a three-day battle of massed tanks, had been encircled and "annihilated" with more than 5,000 prisoners captured, and German military quarters asserted flatly that the Libyan desert campaign could no longer be regarded as a British offensive.

Rezegh is 10 miles south of Tobruk.

British Middle East headquarters said the Germans had rushed up reinforcements to Rezegh and that a big battle was expected there momentarily.

A Cairo bulletin reported that the British Tobruk garrison had smashed deeper into Axis siege lines and declared that strong British tank reinforcements, previously held in reserve, were now moving into the forward battle zones to bolster other imperial armored columns which had been reorganizing for a new attack in the Rezegh area.

Other dispatches indicated that the British expected a lengthy struggle.

As the battle raged into its ninth day, even British reports reflected a sharp setback to earlier hopes for a lightning sweep to knock the Axis out of North Africa.

On the Russo-German war front, the Russians admitted serious new German gains on the northern and southern flanks of Moscow's defense arc, but declared that Red army counterattacks in the Ukraine had thrown the Nazis back six more miles northwest of Rostov-On-Don, in the sector where the Germans had already lost from 37 to 40 miles.

The Vichy (French) radio, quoting "German front reports," said Nazi mechanized forces had slashed through Red army defenses to a point within less than 16 miles of Moscow—the closest approach to the Soviet capital since Adolf Hitler started his huge-scale drive against Moscow on October 2.

The radio said German spearheads had broken through southwest of Klin, 50 miles northwest of Moscow.

There was no confirmation of the report elsewhere, however. S. A. Lozovsky, official Soviet spokesman, said that German casualties in the fighting around Rostov totalled 37,000 and that the two major drives against Moscow had cost the Nazis more dead and wounded than the 330,000 they lost in the World War battle of Verdun.

Soviet front-line dispatches conceded that a powerful thrust by German tanks, planes and infantry had smashed through the Stalingorsk sector, 120 miles west of Moscow, and advanced to the outskirts of the town of "V"—presumably Venev, 40 miles northeast of Stalingorsk. Stalingorsk itself is 60 miles east of Tula, 100 miles south of Moscow, which has long been the scene of bloody fighting.

Stalingorsk, at Tula, the Germans were now apparently striking in a wider flanking maneuver.

The Russians also acknowledged a grave new threat on the north, reporting that the Germans had scored a break-through to a main highway somewhere between Moscow and Klin, 50 miles northwest of the capital.

Village Is Captured

A London broadcast said the Germans had captured the village of Gora, 40 miles northwest of Moscow, while the German high command previously had claimed the capture of Solnetschnogorski, only 31 miles northwest of Moscow.

Dispatches to the Soviet newspaper Pravda, however, reported that Red cavalry and tanks had recaptured five villages in the Klin sector, somewhat easing the pressure at that critical point.

Pravda said German onslaughts in the sectors of Mozhaisk, 37 miles west of Moscow, and Malo-yaroslavets, 65 miles southwest of the capital, had been beaten off.

A bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters reported merely that German troops hammering at Moscow's outer defenses made "no considerable gains."

In North Africa, the situation was confused but apparently the British drive led by Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham was slowing.

Union 17 Appeal Due for Hearing

Order for Temporary Stay to Be Argued

The order for a temporary stay in the matter of the election of officers and an accounting by the officers of Local 17, International Hod Carriers and Common Laborers Union, was to come up for argument before the Appellate Division at Albany today.

Charles de la Vergne and Francis T. Martocci, attorneys for the plaintiffs in the action, were prepared to argue for a dissolution of the order last Wednesday, but Henry Hirschberg, who represents the defendants, Samuel Nuzzo and others, was not present. It was not expected that the Appellate Division would sit beyond today for this term of court and unless the appellants appeared to argue their case today the stay granted by Justice Bergan in the early part of November, would be vacated.

GOOD EXPLANATION

Oconto, Wis. (P)—After explaining how to detect counterfeit money, secret service agent John Voss passed around a spurious $5 bill at a women's club meeting.

November Milk Price Is Expected to Be $2.81

The uniform rate at which dairy farmers will collect for the milk they are delivering this month to plants approved to ship fluid milk to the New York metropolitan milk marketing area was forecast today at $2.81 a hundredweight for milk of 3.5 per cent butterfat in the base zone 201-210 miles from New York city.

The forecast, announced by N. J. Cladakis, administrator of the New York metropolitan milk marketing area, indicates a November uniform price 64 cents a hundredweight above the November, 1940, price of $2.17.

"Our estimate," Mr. Cladakis commented, "anticipates that deliveries for the month will amount to $410,000,000 pounds and will exceed the milkshed's production last November by nearly 32,000,000 pounds."

"If the estimates of production and price are confirmed nearly three weeks from now when the actual uniform price is calculated, the farm value of the month's deliveries will surpass the return from last November by about 40 per cent."

NEW MOTOR VEHICLE LAW

The new Motor Vehicle Safety-Responsibility Law, which was passed unanimously at the last session of the legislature, becomes effective January 1, 1942. The statute is not a compulsory insurance law. A motorist is not required to take out insurance as a prerequisite to obtaining a driver's license or registration plates.

A careful driver who avoids involvement and maintains a good driving record will not be denied the use of the highways. But as will be seen from reading the provisions of the law, if he is involved in an accident he will suffer much less inconvenience if he is protected by insurance or a bond.

Anyone who owns or operates an automobile may be affected by the provisions of the law, including those which call for revocation or suspension of his driving license and vehicle registration in any of the following instances:

Involvement in an accident resulting in any personal injury, or property damage in excess of twenty-five dollars.

Failure to satisfy within 15 days an accident judgment in any amount for personal injury, or for property damage in excess of twenty-five dollars.

Suspension or revocation of driver's license as the result of certain convictions, such as reckless or drunken driving, or leaving the scene of an accident.

Driving record is such that the Motor Vehicle Commissioner feels it is the best interest of the public to require proof of future financial responsibility.

Let no one take it for granted that this new financial responsibility law will entirely eliminate the appalling death toll, or completely erase the large casualty list and the huge financial loss caused by the reckless and those without insurance or bond. And the reason is that the new law requires proof of financial responsibility only after the accident. All motorists, despite their ability, competence, judgment or disposition toward the rights of their fellow man will still be permitted to drive until they manifest their incompetence by damaging others or themselves.

However, the law will keep financially irresponsible motor vehicle operators off the highways in the future, following their first accident resulting in a claim of over twenty-five dollars, which they cannot pay. And this is a good feature. Any person who can afford to buy an automobile can also afford adequate insurance coverage for the protection of other motorists.

THE EVIL EVILETA

American crime reached a new "high" in the career of Evileta Juanita Spinelli, the murderous grandmother who has just died in the electric chair at San Quentin, Cal. She seemed like a character out of the Old West, but her wickedness was much deeper than that of the women adventurers in the mad-bad-glad days of frontier life. She, with her vile gang, was preying upon a highly developed civilization but doing it by cave-man methods.

She was picturesque, though, as well as wicked. She bore her 52 years lightly, with all their weight of crime. She was a cool customer and a good enough shot, they say, to hit a poker chip at 15 paces. She planned to kill a man by sticking a hatpin into his ear. She had a genius for devising ingenious ways to rob and kill people. Perhaps "we ne'er shall look upon her like again." We hope so.

SEVENTY TONS IN THE AIR

Even the Wright brothers, in their triumph at Kitty Hawk, N. C., in 1903, and their belief in the possibilities of aviation, probably never dreamed of a flying machine like the army's giant B-19. The latest test flight completed by this new creation took it into the air with a gross weight of 70 tons. The empty plane weighs 41 tons. It went up the other day with 13 tons of dummy bombs and the rest of the load in fuel, military equipment and crew members. This, it is said, is the biggest load, military or commercial, ever lifted.

The test field from which the air monster took off and on which it later came to a beautiful landing, has a 6,000-foot runway, but the plane left the ground within a few seconds and used only 3,500 feet of the available space.

The fabulous roc of Eastern mythology, a bird of "immense size, able to carry off an elephant in its talons," probably would have flown off in fright at sight of the B-19. Airplanes of this type today are thought of chiefly as weapons of war. One of these days, we believe, they will be used for the expansion of peaceful trade and travel.

Stalin, saying "May God help Mr. Roosevelt in his task," reminds us of an atheist who said: "Oh God, if there be a God, save my soul, if I have a soul."

They say the government has produced a new school of architecture in Virginia, in the form of balloons inflated and sprayed with cement. Blowing bubbles again!

As for that circus tragedy in North Carolina, a boy next door says that poisoning an elephant is as bad as poisoning your grandmother.

The open or closed shop may be good or bad according to the kind of labor leader who controls it.

CASES OF INDIGESTION

When an individual complains of indigestion—belching of gas, pain or uneasiness in stomach, nausea, vomiting, bad taste in mouth or other symptoms—it is only natural that he thinks that there is some stomach disease present. Although he knows that if he eats when he is tired, eats too fast, eats when he is upset, he will get indigestion, he still thinks that the stomach is at fault, not his nerves or emotions. If he is young, he thinks he has ulcer; if of middle age or older, he fears cancer. As a matter of fact, the stomach is to blame in some cases but in the majority of cases of indigestion, the stomach is to blame in about one in every ten cases.

What work does the stomach do?
 The stomach has two jobs; one is to manufacture the stomach digestive juice (gastric juice) and the other is to move its muscular walls so that the food eaten gets well mixed with the stomach digestive juice.

That the symptoms of indigestion are usually due to some disturbance of the movements of the stomach walls is stated by Dr. T. Grier Miller, Philadelphia, in the New England Journal of Medicine. Instead of the movements of the stomach being regular and rhythmic, they can be disturbed so that they stop altogether or move the food upwards (vomiting or nausea) instead of downwards. The disturbance may be caused by the emotions, by poisons, by allergy, by gall bladder disease, appendicitis, and by ulcer and cancer of the stomach.

Dr. Miller's chart shows that of 2542 cases of indigestion, one in every four cases had no actual organic disease present, most cases being due to emotional disturbances. Gall bladder disease was responsible for about one in every three cases; ulcer of small intestine was the cause in one of every four cases. When the examinations and tests show that no organic disease is present, many of these patients get immediate relief of their symptoms.

The thought then is that indigestion is due to some cause and in most cases to disturbance of stomach movements. Instead of wondering or worrying, you should undergo examination including X-rays, and find cause of disturbance.

Diet in Ulcer of Stomach
 Due to the stress and worry of modern life many individuals suffer from real or threatened ulcer of the stomach. The most important factor is to try to acquire calmness but diet helps some cases. Send today for Dr. Barton's new leaflet entitled "Diet Suggestions in Ulcer of the Stomach." Just send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Barton, Post Office Box 130, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y., and ask for leaflet by name.

DEFENSE Quiz

Q. How are retail stores aiding in the National Defense Program during the holiday season?

A. They are participating in a country-wide effort for the sale of Defense Savings Stamps to their Christmas customers.

Q. Federal taxes have increased. Why are people also urged to buy Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps?

A. Because the country faces the greatest danger in its history. The way to meet that danger is to safeguard our assets and resources to the limit. Also, individuals need to save now as never before, to meet the problems likely to arise when defense spending ends.

Note.—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also Stamps are now on sale at retail stores.

LOOKING OVER THE MAPS

Washington Daybook

Washington — Answering the mail orders:

Corp. T. L., Camp Barkley, Tex.—The "air jeeps" will probably get their first real test in the Carolina maneuvers, but in preliminary tests the "grasshopper squadrons" of flivver planes already have proved themselves in the Louisiana maneuvers. The planes cost about $3,000 each.

Finger Print and Identification Magazine, Chicago—I stand corrected. President Roosevelt was fingerprinted soon after he took office and, according to the double check which I should have made in the first place, practically all members of the First Family now have done their finger exercises for the great file that is kept in the F.B.I. By the way, I assume you know that the best story on fingerprinting in modern times, to my way of thinking, is the fingerprinting of aliens. It would be impossible to round up, in a fat volume, all the good human interest stories that came out of it. There was the case of the Scot, 60 years old, and a "legal voter" for 39 years who didn't know that he was NOT born in this country; and the Greek, who served in the World War and thought his discharge papers entitled him to citizenship. He has been voting for 20 years. There are thousands of such yarns that came out of the alien registration and fingerprinting law.

M. N., San Antonio, Tex.—The army has released no figures on it but inside guesses are that a far greater number of selectees are enlisting in the regular army (for three years) than anyone suspects. Even before the army announced its plan to urge selectees to enlist for regular army service (so they may be subject to overseas duty) some camps were reporting that from 50 to 60 per cent of the selectees were coming in as regular army enlistees.

P. R. L., San Mateo, Calif.—The narrow margin on the House vote on revision of the Neutrality bill to allow U. S. ships to go into ports of warring countries (212 to 194) isn't considered here as any indication of disunity in the country. The non-interventionists, for example, have been claiming that 80 per cent of the people are against war or any steps that might lead to war. It is this such a step, as they argued, the almost 50-50 vote in the House would be far off. An overwhelming vote, say 80-20, or 70-30 vote against the administration foreign policy, would be a much greater indication of disunity. As I have explained before, there were many factors entering into the narrowness of this margin. In reality, however, it pretty much is following the pattern of Congressional votes on highly controversial questions ever since the first Congress assembled—they nearly always are close. The important thing is that with few exceptions, the people always have gone pretty much all out in backing the laws of the land, no matter if they passed only by a single vote.

K. N., Alexandria, Va.—There's nothing to that report that conscientious objectors and persons who ask deferment under the draft will not get their government jobs back when their cases are settled, or peace has returned. The Civil Service Commission has ruled that this is up to the hiring agency and, all things being equal (that is, that investigation indicated that the selectee was sincere) it is probable that C.S.C. would go to bat for the applicant for reinstatement.

W. L. C., Carthage, Ill.—There are 429 members of the House, at present, with six vacancies (an unusually low number of vacancies). There are no empty seats in the Senate—the reason being that Senators are appointed by the governors when vacancies occur through death or resignation. The theory behind this, I'm told, is that it is all right for a governor to appoint a Senator, since he (the governor) also is state elected. The congressman must be elected because he represents a state district only—one that may be opposed to the governor's views.

Story Going Around Washington Says Roosevelt Capitulated to Lewis's Demand for Closed Shop

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 26.—A circumstantial story is going the rounds here which in effect says President Roosevelt surrendered to John Lewis last Saturday and that behind the acceptance by Mr. Lewis of the arbitration proposal which stopped the coal strike was a virtual certainty that the closed shop would be granted.

The report is that on Saturday morning when the policy committee of the United Mine Workers in session Mr. Lewis was called away from the meeting and kept the committee waiting for nearly an hour. During that interval Mr. Lewis was advised by someone in touch with the White House that the third arbitrator would be John R. Steelman, who would have the deciding vote.

The steel companies, on the other hand, accepted the arbitration proposal of the President a few days before without knowing who the third arbitrator would be. In view of the fact that Mr. Steelman was the mediator in the coal controversy last spring settled by an agreement which sanctioned the closed shop, Mr. Lewis had every reason to believe that here was an arbitrator friendly to his cause.

Would the steel companies which own the captive mines have accepted arbitration in advance of the making of their proposal it had been stated that the third arbitrator would be someone who had been connected with the previous coal controversy? Did they not have a right to assume that the arbitrator would be someone who had not had any previous relationship to the very contract, known as the Appalachian agreement, which was now in dispute?

It now is confidently expected in Washington circles that the closed shop will be granted to Mr. Lewis and that he will win by arbitration award what he could not get through the mediation board previously. There never was any doubt, however, that the issue did not turn on what was awarded in the captive coal mines. Privately many of the steel executives have conceded that there is some merit in the contention by Mr. Lewis that when 95 per cent of the miners are members of his union, the other five per cent should join. The steel men, however, did not want to be placed in the position of sanctioning a closed shop in their coal mines and thus being compelled to grant the same thing to all the steel employees.

It is true that what is decided in the captive mine controversy does not necessarily constitute a precedent for any other case. It is true also that Mr. Steelman is to retire for a brief interval from the government service so he can appear to be an outside mediator in a private dispute. But if he should decide in favor of a closed shop and fail to accompany his award with any other proposal freezing the closed shop issue for the duration of the emergency, then nothing would have been accomplished by the arbitration except to enhance the prestige of the miners' union and their chief and encourage the C.I.O. unions generally to start a nationwide drive for the closed shop.

Mr. Steelman is a very able citizen—perhaps the best mediator in the country. He is fair and he is courageous. But he has been presented with a case which if confined narrowly to the coal mine controversy cannot help but be decided on a closed shop basis.

The President said recently that the government could not and would not order a closed shop. If Mr. Steelman—as a private individual for the moment—decides for the closed shop, and since both sides have agreed to accept the award, the technicalities will have been complied with. It can then be called a "voluntary" agreement and as such comes within the terms of the Wagner law.

The real question is whether Mr. Steelman, taking cognizance of the arguments of the steel side of the controversy that the needs of national defense certainly should rise above interruptions, will recommend the closed shop, but condition it on the abandonment by the C.I.O. (of which the miners' union is a part) of any further demands for the closed shop in the steel industry. If he does this, he will have made a statesmanlike approach.

Would the other elements in the C.I.O., namely the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, feel that they can be bound by any award which is confined to the coal industry? That's a very doubtful proposition. So it may be that Mr. Steelman will grant the closed shop and then and thereafter the President will proclaim his opposition to any more closed-shop controversies, attempting instead to freeze the existing status for the duration of the emergency.

It may be that the President would ask Congress to declare all strikes for the closed shop as illegal hereafter. If such a result ensued, the practical effect of the victory won by Mr. Lewis would be of less importance and future interruptions to the defense program would be cut to the minimum.

Three True Axioms of Life

Three of life's axioms are self-evident. They are true. They repeat themselves over and over and cannot be evaded. They must be heeded and their validity recognized.

First: We see what we look for. Unfortunately, we have too much moral blindness. Our vision is faulty because we look for something else than what should come within the range of our vision.

If we see defeat, discouragement, despair in all of our endeavors, it is because we are looking for nothing else. If we see an escape from our difficulties, it is because we look for no escape. If we look only for flaws and faults in our fellowmen, we shall see nothing else. If we look for the better things of life—virtues of kindness, helpfulness, good-will, high ideals—we shall see them.

Second: We get what we want. This applies to people en masse. It has to do with the things of life that really count. It often applies to material things; it always applies to spiritual interests.

If people want anything, want it badly enough to work hard enough for its attainment, it is theirs. All social institutions are the result of what people want. Their strength is the strength and zeal of the people who built them. Their weaknesses are the weaknesses of the people whose remissness is written in their every element.

If people are content with second-rate people in public office, that is the kind of officeholders they will have. If we have good laws, it is because we want them; if we have bad laws, it is because we want them. If we have crime or order, prosperity or adversity, victories or defeats, it is because we paid the required price in every case.

Third: We have what we deserve. We wish we might qualify this principle a little. We wish we might think that we do not deserve all that we have. The innocent may suffer with the guilty. But, taken by and large, humanity reaps what it sows. Sometimes the harvest is something awful, but the ways of an unerring Providence decree retribution as well as reward. Indifference is the common fault of the race, and the price we pay for it is excessive.

A latecomer to the circus performance was fussily pushing his way to a seat.

"Did I tread on your corn, old man?" he remarked, as he saw one of the audience wince.

"It must have been you, I'm afraid," was the reply. "All the elephants are in the ring."

An elderly woman was visiting a ranch in Wyoming, and on noticing a lasso coiled up on a cowboy's saddle, she inquired what it was used for.

Cowboy—We use that for catching cattle and horses.

Woman—Indeed, and what do you use for bait?

Remedy. The best way to overcome the vast amount of evil in this world is to increase the amount of good in it. This means a personal contribution by each of us. For the state of the world is merely the mass contribution of the acts of all who inhabit it.

Wife—Thank goodness! Now I can get credit again.

Visitors to the house in the daytime made so much noise that the night nurse could not get sufficient rest.

English Soldier—If you don't mind, sir, I'd rather postpone my leave for a bit. I remember going about this time during the last war an' I dropped in for 10 days' spring-cleaning.

THE PHONE BOOTH MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

Chapter Seven
Irate Guest

"I'm goin' to stay here till I see who comes out of this room," said Jennie. "An' if it ain't that woman that was at the red lights, I'm goin' to eat my—my—"

Assey never knew what Jennie intended to devour, for her sentence petered out in mid-air as bed-springs suddenly creaked inside Room Five.

Then someone moved.

Jennie smiled triumphantly. The door knob was turned, and then the door itself was flung open.

A tall, pale, black-haired woman, dressed in a wide-skirted housecoat of crimson-and-white striped satin, stood and surveyed Assey and Jennie with an expression of one who had been tried beyond human endurance.

Jennie's eyes bulged, and Assey bit his lip to keep from smiling. This woman didn't even bear a passing resemblance to the slight woman under the umbrella at the red lights.

"What you two are doing here," the woman said icily, "and why you have chosen this hallway to imitate a pair of screaming panthers in a cage, I cannot imagine. Move out of my way, please. I shall see what Mrs. Doane has to say about this!"

Jennie gulped audibly as the woman sailed past her and disappeared, with a great swishing of her billowing skirt, around a corner of the hall.

"Well, did you ever! Well, for goodness' sakes, what do you know about that! Assey, what you suppose happened to the woman I seen? Run after her quick an' ask her where that woman went to!"

"I think," Assey took her arm, "that we'd better get out of here before she comes sailin' back with Mrs. Doane. From the look on her face, I think we'll be lucky if she don't come sailin' back with a fire ax. Come on downstairs, Jennie!"

He steered her toward the landing.

"But Assey! I—"

"No buts," Assey said. "What you seen is technically known as a mirage, an' 'what you been doin' is harassin' an innocent bystander. That's about that. Now, get along!"

Before they reached the foot of the stairs, snatches of a heated conversation taking place outside on the front steps floated up to them through the open front door.

Jennie nudged Assey as she caught sight of a broad-shouldered figure in a raincoat.

"That's Mrs. Doane, Assey! Syl says she's the bossiest woman he ever met. Listen. That girl's catchin' it good an' plenty!"

The girl, Assey thought as he walked quietly across the living room, certainly was.

Mrs. Doane, with a sweeping, peremptory gesture that included Syl's truck, the buckets of clams, and the clams strewn over the steps, wished to know exactly what her daughter was thinking about to permit such an evil-smelling scene.

The trouble with her daughter Freddy, Mrs. Doane announced, was not that she lacked brains. Freddy merely refused to use them. The result was a lackadaisical incompetence which sometimes terrified Mrs. Doane. Sometimes, Mrs. Doane said, she waked in the middle of the night shivering to think what would happen to the Whale Inn and its clientele, which she had so carefully built up throughout the years, if she herself were called away just for a single day, or one.

As Mrs. Doane was certain, Mrs. Doane was certain, the Whale Inn's old and valued clientele would depart forever. They would be gone with the wind. The hard, constant work of twenty long years would in the space of a few brief hours be irrevocably and forever blotted out. It would all have been for nothing.

If that was not so, Mrs. Doane would up, then why had Freddy allowed the clam man to park his hideous, smelly fish truck out in front of the Whale Inn, not to mention all those smelly clams littering the place?

Tantrum

"DEAR ME, Mother," Freddy said, "you're in rare form! That was practically like launching the curse of Rome. Was it a flat tire? I wondered what was keeping you."

Mrs. Doane said that owing to the incompetence of an ungrateful daughter, who utterly refused to pay any attention to detail, she had run out of gasoline and been forced to walk miles through a downpour whose like she had never seen, in order to remedy the situation.

"And with the current off, they couldn't draw any gasoline from the pump. I simply had to sit there and wait. Freddy, why did you ever allow Mayo to park there? Why? What would people think if they saw that thing out there?"

"I didn't have a thing to do with it, Mother. I didn't even know it was there till you showed me. I hadn't looked out. But cheer up, I'll drive the truck around back and sweep up the clams, and no one will ever guess how untidy we've been, dear."

"But didn't you hear it come? What have you been doing?"

"Trying to get the old light system working," Freddy said. "The current was off here, too, and when I phoned and asked about it, they said it would be three or four hours before it came back. So Dad and I went to work on the light plant. We thought you'd be so pleased that we thought of it. I didn't hear the truck. But I did wonder what those two came in."

"What two?"

"Well," Freddy said hesitantly, "I was trying to tell you about them when you went off on a tangent about serpents' teeth. Come inside, Mother, and I'll—"

Mrs. Doane stopped short on the threshold and stared at Assey and Jennie.

Apparently the sight of them did nothing to improve Mrs. Doane's state of mind.

"Who are these people?" she snapped the question at Freddy. They're the two, Mother. The woman was upstairs. I don't know what she was doing there, or when she went up. She must have slipped in while I was out trying to get the Delco going. Then he came in. He says he's—"

"Mrs. Doane!"

The woman in the crimson-and-white house coat spoke from the stairs.

At the sound of her voice, Mrs. Doane's expression changed from that of the presiding officer at a court-martial to one of friendly and kindly benevolence. It was so swift and complete a change that Assey found himself looking at Mrs. Doane with new interest.

Empty Closet

"OH, Mrs. Hingham!" Mrs. Doane walked quickly over to the foot of the stairs. "Is your headache better? Should you like more coffee?"

"I shall have to ask you," Mrs. Hingham said frigidly, "to call a doctor. What with this pair screaming up and down the hallway, my migraine is worse. I do think your local friends—they are local people, aren't they? I do think you should request them to be more considerate of your guests."

"Freddy," Mrs. Doane said, "help Mrs. Hingham up to her room, and get her some fresh hot-water bottles. I'll be right up with some coffee as soon as I've called the doctor."

She waited until Freddy and Mrs. Hingham disappeared from sight, and then she turned and faced Assey and Jennie.

"Mrs. Doane," Assey said before she could open her mouth, "I should've made myself known to you before now, but I wanted to find out if you was as much in the dark about things as your daughter seemed to be. I'm Syl Mayo's cousin. This is his wife. We came here at six with Syl's clams—"

Whatever your connections may be with that irresponsible clam man," Mrs. Doane said brusquely, "I do not wish to know about them. You may take your clams, all of them, including those you threw over the steps, and leave. I don't wish to hear any of your explanations."

"I'm afraid," Assey said, "that you're the one that's going to make the explanations, an' I can tell you I wish to hear 'em, Mrs. Doane. No, just wait, please, until you see what I have to show you."

Walking over to the telephone closet, he swung open the door and turned to Mrs. Doane.

"If you'll come over here an' look, Mrs. Doane, he said, "you'll find out why I—well, for the love of Pete!"

He looked blankly at Jennie, and she looked blankly back at him.

The telephone closet was empty. The body was gone!

Now, take your clams and your truck and get out!" Mrs. Doane said. "I don't know and I don't care what startling things you expected to bring to light in my telephone booth! Certainly there's no body there!"

"No body?" Assey inquired. There was a purring note in his voice which made Jennie prick up her ears. She knew that purr was an indication that Assey was getting down to brass tacks.

"Nobody!" Mrs. Doane said. "Now, get along, the two of you, and take your clams with you!"

"Mother!" Freddy Doane called from the stairs. "Mother! Mrs. Hingham's having hysterics or something—will you come quick?"

"Right away," Mrs. Doane reached out and slammed the phone closet door shut, and then, marching over to the front door, she swung it open wide and stood there, tapping her foot. "Come along, you two!"

Assey hooked his arm through Jennie's.

"Come on, Cousin," he said. "Lady wants us to leave. Let's."

Kingston's Police Department Was Organized in 1891

Brief History of One of Important Departments of City Reprinted for Use of Pupils

This is a seventh in a series of articles on the early history of Kingston and Ulster County. These articles, published several years ago, are reprinted at the request of the principals of local grade schools. These educators anticipate their usefulness to pupils in county history in connection with the social course, which is a correlation of history, geography and civics.

The following is taken from the files of The Freeman, dated March 14, 1934:

Forty-three years ago in May 15, 1891, the bill creating the police department of Kingston went into effect, with the late Stephan D. Hood as chief of police, and Thomas J. Murray and the late Michael J. Cahill as sergeants. Since that day in May in the gay nineties there have been many changes in the police personnel, and many up-to-date improvements made in police equipment, including the installation of the police signal system, the motorizing of the department, the finger print system and the teletype. Chief Hood died in 1908, and J. Allan Wood, the present chief, was appointed to fill the vacancy.

One of the biggest assets to any municipality is its police department and judging from the efficiency and the work accomplished Kingston's police system ranks high. When the police force was first organized with Chief Hood and Sergeant Murray in charge the patrolmen were: James D. McIntyre, Thomas B. Cullen, George Roach, John Kiernan and William Shuberg. The bill creating the police force also specified that the constables who were serving at the time should act with the force. There were four constables at that time. They were Thomas Johnston, John Sullivan, "Jack" Barry and Michael J. Cahill, who was appointed junior police sergeant of the newly created department, which position he filled until he was seriously injured while alighting from a trolley car on Broadway, which injuries led to his resigning from the force.

Of the seven policemen and four constables who constituted the city's first police department, but one is still living, Sergeant Murray who is on the retired list. Following the death of Chief Hood in 1908, Chief Wood became head of the department and in the years that followed many changes were made in the department. The police signal system was installed in 1915 and the same year the department installed a finger print system, similar to that used by larger police departments in the state. In later years a motorcycle squad was organized to care for the heavy traffic through the streets, and recently a teletype machine was installed.

Kingston is one of the few cities in the state that has no unsolved murder mystery on its books. One of the most brutal murders in the history of the city in recent years was that of Mrs. Amelia Paulus on the evening of August 15, 1914. The murderer, Ludwig Marquart, was later captured and ended his life in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison. Marquart driven to desperation because he had been rejected as a suitor for her hand, hid himself behind a tree near the Paulus home. Mrs. Paulus and her two small children had been spending the day at Kingston Point Park and were walking home with a neighbor when Marquart suddenly sprang out from behind the tree and knocked Mrs. Paulus to the ground and then slashed her throat with a razor. At his trial his defense was insanity, but the jury evidently believed him sane for they found the death penalty. One of the high lights of the trial was the sudden appearance of Marquart's abandoned wife who came to the aid of her husband and by her testimony attempted to bolster up the insanity plea.

Two Lost Their Lives
But two members of the police department have lost their lives in the performance of their duty. It was early Thursday evening, February 6, 1919, that Officer James Lawrence placed James M. Byrd, a negro, under arrest for public intoxication, and was escorting him up the sidewalk to the city hall when Byrd's companions came to his assistance. In the mixup Byrd got hold of an ugly looking knife and stabbed Officer Lawrence in the side with it. As the officer reeled and fell the negro broke away and ran. With the knife wound in the side and dripping blood at every step Lawrence pluckily gave chase and fired three times at the fleeing negro. None of the shots took effect. Half an hour later the negro was found hiding behind some lumber within a stone's throw of the city hall. He was later tried and found guilty and on July 22, 1920, was electrocuted at Sing Sing prison.

The other officer to lose his life was Policeman John G. Boyd who died from injuries received when the trolley car he was riding on was struck by a West Shore train on the Broadway crossing. Several others lost their lives in the accident.

The City Hall Fire
Saturday evening, June 4, 1927, the city hall was badly gutted by fire which broke out on the top floor of the building. At the time of the fire Sergeant Charles Phinney was alone in police headquarters on the ground floor receiving the 8 o'clock calls over the police signal system. It was a warm summer night and the windows were wide open. Suddenly a man thrust his head through an open window. "Sergeant," he said, "the city hall is afire."

As the man spoke the fire bell in the city hall tower began tolling its summons. Some one else had also discovered the fire and turned in an alarm. Sergeant Phinney immediately began calling in all of the patrolmen both those going off duty and those reporting for the night trick. He also called Chief Wood and Sergeant James V. Simpson, both of whom hurried to the city hall and took charge of the work of removing the city records to a place of safety.

E. J. Dempsey was mayor of the city, and he hurried to the city hall and arranged to have the records removed to the Municipal Building on East O'Reilly street. City employees worked all day Sunday getting temporary headquarters ready in the Municipal Building and the following Monday after the fire the city departments opened for business and were functioning as usual.

The work of reconstructing the city hall was taken up later at a cost of approximately $300,000.

Officer on Horseback

Many a tale is told during the lull in business at police headquarters and some of the tales are tragic and some humorous. There is the tale for instance of a stray dog that sought to make headquarters its home and an officer was ordered to take the animal out and shoot it. He tied a cord to the dog's collar and took him a short distance and tied the animal to a tree. Then he fired once and reported to headquarters, saluted, and reported, "The dog is shot sir."

"Then take him out and shoot him again," said the man on the desk. The bullet had cut the rope, releasing the dog, and the animal had streaked back to headquarters. There is also the tale of an old time officer who shot a horse on Stuyvesant street, but unable to spell the name, dragged the animal all the way down the hill to Ann street, as he was able to spell "Ann" in making out his report. This story, however, may be just another yarn that the cops like to spin.

All Sorts of Calls
The police are accustomed to receiving all sorts of calls from shooting a skunk that has sought refuge under a house porch to acting as mediator in family troubles, for it seems that there are many people when they are in trouble of any sort first look for a cop to help them settle the problem.

"Whistle for Me"
Officer Shadler, now on the retired list, used to spin the yarn of a New Yorker who came to town with his wife. They engaged a room in a hotel and then the husband band led to make some purchases and became confused as to just what hotel he had left the wife at. He applied to the officer and made the somewhat startling request for the officer to walk past the three hotels in the vicinity and whistle a well known tune.

My wife knows that tune, and she will think it is me, said the husband earnestly "and as soon as

HYDRA-MATIC

NO CLUTCH TO PRESS!
NO GEARS TO SHIFT!

Optional at Extra Cost

MOST EVERYONE knows Hydra-Matic Drive* is a work saver. But few realize that it's a gas saver, too. Here are the facts: Hydra-Matic is engineered with four speeds forward. That permits slower engine speeds. In fourth speed, for example, 1,000 engine revolutions will propel your Olds Hydra-Matic 2,130 feet as against 1,700 feet for a similar car with standard transmission. Hence, you get more mileage on gas—or, conversely, save gas on any given trip. Then, too, Hydra-Matic's automatic shifting prevents lags and consequent waste of fuel. The net result—gasoline savings of 10 to 15 per cent. Why not drive the easy Hydra-Matic way—in a new Olds B-44—and be money ahead on gas!

Home Service Cowboy Songs Jolly at Parties

Old Favorites in Songbook
Real cowboy songs go over big at gay get-togethers! Everybody gathers round the songbook and warbles his favorite. "The Dreary Black Hills" is a bit grizzly, but the gang loves it!

"For old sitting Bull or Comanche Bills, They will take off your scalp on the dreary Black Hills." They love the tender, dreamy "Red River Valley," too. Remember in "Grapes of Wrath" when Tom sang it to Ma Joad? "Come and sit by my side if you love me, Do not hasten to bid me adieu..." But "Git Along Little Doggie" is the one that gives you the real flavor of cowboy life.

"It's early in Spring that we round up the dogies; We mark them and brand them and bob off their tails. We round up our horses, load up the chuck wagon, And then throw the dogies out onto the trail." Our songbook has words and music of 18 western songs every one loves, with piano and some guitar accompaniments. Includes "Little Old Shanty," "Bury Me Not On The Lone Prairie." Send 10c in coin for your copy of "Popular Cowboy Songs" to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of songbook.

Strike Laws Are Made in Congress

nounced last night. It involved 2,500 A.F.L. workmen and cut the movement of truck-hauled freight in Chicago to about one-fourth of normal. The workers had been receiving 55 cents an hour, asked for 75, and settled for 67 1/2 cents and overtime concessions in a new closed shop contract running for two years.

Production Is Halted

The A.F.L. machinists strike in and around St. Louis slowed or halted production in 400 industrial plants, including two airplane factories. Millions of dollars worth of defense orders, including $19,000,000 placed by the navy, were curtailed or tied up by the walkout. It stemmed from a jurisdictional dispute with the union, involving engineers and carpenters unions.

Joseph D. Keenan, O.P.M. labor expert who characterized the strike as the most serious in the nation, announced last night he had obtained "a commitment from the machinists" and expected settlement "within a very few hours."

A coastwise strike of A.F.L. longshoremen apparently was averted last night by settlement of a contract dispute. The agreement, approved by the ship, is subject to ratification by the union membership. It calls for indefinite extension of the old contract, which expired October 31, with the understanding that if the Interstate Commerce Commission should approve higher coastwise freight rates, the companies and union would meet again to discuss wage adjustments.

The longshoremen wanted their hourly wages raised from 95 cents to $1.10, and the overtime rate increased from $1.42 to $1.65. Omar S. Hoskins, federal labor conciliator, said full-scale operations were resumed at the Pittsburgh, Calif., plant of the Columbia Steel Company under an agreement to negotiate a wage controversy.

The plant, holding $5,000,000 in defense orders and employing 3,200 persons, had been closed since Friday of a strike called by the steel workers organizing committee in an effort to win wage increases for 218 workers in the foundry finishing department.

Originally the union asked raises of 15 to 25 cents an hour for the finishers, but these figures were later reduced to a 12-16 range. There was no indication how far the present demands exceeded the company's best counter-offer nor what comprises the existing wage scale.

New York, Nov. 26 (AP)—Adjusting its action to a rather inauspicious background, the stock market today shifted to lower territory with most leaders surrendering fractions to a round a point.

Although hesitant, the list gave a fairly good account of itself in early proceedings. Minus signs multiplied after heaviness developed in steel, which had been resistant up to midday. Exceptions to the downward trend near the final hour included a few specialties, but gains were small. Transfers were at the rate of around 800,000 shares.

Stocks disposed to retreat were American Telephone, Glenn Martin, Allied Chemical, Santa Fe, United Aircraft, Pennsylvania and Great Northern, Pfd. Supported at times were Dow Chemical, Westinghouse, J. C. Penney and Owens-Illinois.

Bonds and commodities were mixed.

Persecution Complex

"The court is satisfied that you have a persecution complex," the judge said in a decision rendered previously to the United States in defense and is impressed with the fact. Nevertheless, there stands this example of a man who permits himself to indulge a mind that will not be content with being thwarted even by the law. The law which applies to everyone else applies to you. It is because the court is satisfied that you suffer from more or less of a persecution complex that you unfortunately have so conducted your life and so guided yourself mentally that you feel because you have certain artistic gifts that you are somewhat above your fellow men. You believe that there should exist in this nation some degree of class distinction, at least so far as you are concerned, so that you might be raised above the level of the common man, and until you have satisfied yourself of that notion you are bound to continue to be in difficulty with your fellow men. "You must understand that this nation is great because under it all men are created equal and all men have equal rights before this nation's courts and in the defense of their liberties."

"It is because you have certain gifts, artistic abilities, that you have brought yourself to a belief that the standards that apply to others should not apply to you and common sense must dictate to you that if you have gifts that are above and beyond those accredited to anyone else you have only Divine Providence to thank for that and it was through no merit of yours."

"And so the spirit of humility ought to prevail in you. The history of art will show that it is the spirit which prevails in every artist. Whether you are an artist, a laborer, a bank president or an executive or judge you have the same duties. You should have cherishes in your heart so high a respect for this great nation that your mind could never, even under the greatest stress, force yourself or permit yourself to say anything in derogation of the application of its just laws, to you or to any member of your family."

Price Correction

In the Grand Union Market place advertisement Tuesday night Parkway margarine was priced at two pounds for 20 cents and for one cent more another pound would be added. The correct price is two pounds for 40 cents and for an extra cent, it is three pounds for 41 cents.

Melik Gets Year Suspended Term

mit Melik to speak briefly in his own behalf.

Melik Permitted to Talk

Melik said he desired the Court to take into consideration the fact that at the time of the alleged act, that he was under great emotion due to the illness of his mother and all he had asked was that 48 hours be granted in order to see how the serious condition of his father turned. He said he had no criminal intent and was laboring under the stress of great emotion at the time.

Zaven told the court that he realized the act was an unfortunate circumstance and that what ever he may have said reflected in no way upon his own patriotism. He said for 20 years the family had resided in Kingston and he told of numerous charitable acts which he and his brother had done in the churches, schools and hospitals and of the contribution of glasses to needy children of the schools. He said he had volunteered for service in the U. S. Army and said that he regretted the controversy into which he had become involved.

District Attorney Haver said that he did not doubt that Melik was laboring under great emotional stress at the time of the alleged act but he said that Melik and all others must be brought to realize that they owed certain duties and responsibilities to the country if our democratic way of life was to survive. He said that the court was not to be swayed by the pleas of those who were not enjoying rights which peoples of other countries were being denied. Many people come to these shores and mistake "liberty of license." He said that the type of the late Roland Fuller and Dr. Sam Stern were the type to be subjected to threats, they were men who were of their time and ability to their country and in conclusion he said that the sentence should be such as to let Melik and all others know that we won't countenance such acts.

Judge Reviews Acts

Before pronouncing sentence Judge Conway reviewed the acts alleged and said: "The court has before it the complete probation report concerning this defendant and Melik you stand convicted upon your plea of guilty before this court of having made threats designed to intimidate a public officer. It is a fact, as you very well know, that the men toward whom you made such threats, at least the members of the board was gratuitously serving out of appreciation for what this great nation means to him and to all others."

"It is the court's belief that under emotional stress you made these statements. The court has the plain common sense to realize that you had no present ability to carry out any such threats. However, this court cannot countenance the making of any such threats even under the most keen and emotionally disturbed mental faculties. There is no excuse for that except that which lies in the back of your mind and your conduct has earned for you public scorn and contempt and you will pay the penalty in the future because the people of this community have a keen sense of appreciation for what the nation means to each of us and a ready willingness to perform their duties of citizenship at any personal sacrifice to themselves and they demand of you, and rightfully so, that you also shall meet the same standards."

Probation Report

In his report on Probation which is made to the county judge and made a part of the court record, Lawrence M. Jensen, chief Probation officer of the county, who made his first report as full time probation officer for the first 10 months of the year, stressed the importance of probation work.

Since assuming office on a full time basis he reported collection of over $4,400 more for neglected families than during the previous year when the office was only a part time position. Mr. Jensen reported that in over 100 criminal cases he had a complete record and that the individual concerned from the time of birth to date. This work represented a large amount of time. Similar reports were also made for Supreme Court cases. He also reported that many non-support cases were adjusted by the new system and that many families were thereby receiving additional support which might not otherwise have been received. Investigations for Children's Court matters are also attended to by the chief probation officer.

Judge Conway commended the board on its advance in the matter of probation police and suggested that when possible the board consider an increase in the $1,800 salary to the chief probation officer whom he said had done a splendid job since being appointed and he also suggested that some suitable private office be provided for the probation officer where interviews could be held.

In his statistical report, Probation Officer Jensen reported on the 87 probation cases handled, reported that he had held 1,876 interviews and had collected some 800 payments representing $5,583.71 collected principally for family support. This was an increase of $4,415.79 over the previous year. He also reported 39 supervision cases, 72 recorded intake cases and 1,876 interviews in his office, at homes and elsewhere during the past 10 months. Of the money recovered through his office $4,935.15 was for support of families and $748.56 was for restitution by probationers for loss or damage caused by their offenses.

In the report it was stated that according to Dr. Leo Palmer, superintendent at Elmira State Reformatory, it cost 19 times as much for imprisonment of individuals over probation. The result of probation, it was pointed out, saved many persons for future useful lives where prison sentences probably would destroy their usefulness to society.

Both the report of Judge Conway and

POULTRY LIVERS—AN ECONOMICAL WAY OF ADDING ZEST TO DAILY MENUS

The new Cookbooklet, "250 Ways to Prepare Poultry and Game Birds," ready this week for readers of the Kingston Daily Freeman, suggests a number of interesting recipes using poultry livers in fillings, salads, hot dishes and many other ways. One of the best features of these recipes is their economy—livers themselves can be bought at your market for very small cost.

For Sunday night supper or Sunday lunch try this delicious omelet:

Chicken Liver Omelet
½ pound chicken livers
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Dash cinnamon
Dash mace
1 teaspoon flour
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon cooking sherry
Omelet made with 4 eggs

Season livers with salt, pepper, cinnamon and mace; dredge with flour and saute in butter over low heat until brown. Just before removing, stir in sherry until mixture thickens but does not boil. Fold into the cooked omelet and serve at once. Serves 6.

This booklet is fourth in the series prepared by the Culinary Arts Institute. Every phase of cooking and meal planning is presented in a complete and concise manner. The complete set is being released a booklet each week.

The first three booklets, already released have been very popular with our readers and they are still available to those who neglected to obtain them. The first booklet, "500 Snacks," is a remarkable little handbook of recipes and suggestions for canapés, hors d'oeuvres, entrees, salads, sandwiches and snacks of all descriptions for all occasions. Booklet number two is the Leftover Book packed with 500 recipes that help you get the most from the food you buy. You won't waste a morsel with this wonderful guide to suggest ideas. Use your leftover bread, cakes, crackers, eggs, cheese, meats, poultry, fish, sour milk and cream, vegetables and jams in exciting new recipes that disguise the fact that you are saving money. The third booklet brings you "250 Classic Cake Recipes" to help you keep the cake box ever full of delicate cakes of every type. Then there's the current release, the Poultry Book.

Your copy of "250 Ways to Prepare Poultry and Game Birds," as well as the first three booklets in the series may be obtained by presenting ONE Coupon from page 2 of the Kingston Daily Freeman, with 13c at the nearest distributor listed upon the coupon or if you prefer, by mail with a money order coupon from page 2 to The Kingston Daily Freeman, Freeman Square, Cookbooklet Dept., Kingston, N. ## Workers Are Busy At Cheer Fund Tasks

With exactly four weeks before Christmas, all of the workers on the Mayor's Christmas Cheer Fund are earnestly working at their appointed tasks. A meeting of committee chairmen was held yesterday at the city hall and reports were made.

It was found that due to new taxes and advance in prices of materials, and clothing which must necessarily be purchased, the problem of financing the project this year will be greater than ever before. Mrs. Edward Loughran, chairman of the finance committee, has added the following list of workers to her committee: Mrs. James A. Mathers, Mrs. Parker K. Brinnier, Miss Anne Heaney, Mrs. Harris C. Inglis, Mrs. Alfred D. Ronder and Mrs. Charles E. Davis. The finance committee has already started soliciting funds. This Christmas Cheer Fund is a local organization and all of the benefits go directly to the community to give the less fortunate children in Kingston a merry Christmas.

The candy and doll committees also made reports of progress. Any toys or dolls which are no longer in use in their present homes would make a fine addition to the supplies for the Christmas packs. These articles will be collected by volunteers and will be refinished or repaired. For collection either the police station or fire department will take the calls.

Miss Elma Kuhlman, chairman of the selection committee, reported that more than 1,000 names had been furnished to her for the list this year with the possibility that it might be as large as last year. Arrangements are being completed for the packing, some of which is done by club groups. Those attending yesterday's meeting were: Mrs. Stanley Matthews, general chairman, Mrs. J. Nicholas Stock, Mrs. Harry B. Walker, Miss Gertrude Dempsey, Mrs. John Cashion, Miss Elma Kuhlman, Mrs. Edward Loughran, Mrs. Charles de la Vergne, Mrs. Sam Mann, Mrs. Herman DuBois, Mrs. B. F. Weiner and Mrs. Eugene MacConnell.

Auxiliary Meeting Held

Dance Plans Formulated
The regular monthly meeting of the Kingston Hospital Auxiliary was held November 25, at the Nurses' Home, Broadway, with the president, Mrs. Frederick Snyder, presiding. Redecorating of more of the rooms at the hospital has been planned and the work is to begin in the near future.

The membership drive will be continued. There will be no December meeting but all members are urged to start the New Year by bringing at least one new member to the January meeting. The annual dance plans are well underway for the date scheduled, February 7. Chairmen and various committees will be announced later.

Christmas decorations will be under the supervision of the president, Mrs. Frederick Snyder, and Mrs. Leonard Flicker. Adjournment followed and a social hour was enjoyed.

Especially commendable was the singing of Dudley Buck's "Sanctus" by the women's chorus. Another highlight of the program was the duet for piano, "The Coming of the Band" by Englemann as played by Paul Barnum, organist at the church, and his daughter, Miss Doris A. Barnum.

WHEN BRIDEGROOM LIVES AT A DISTANCE

I have written many times that when a bridegroom's own home is at a great distance from that of the bride and his own best friends therefore are unable to come to the wedding, it is entirely proper that he choose his attendants from among the brothers and cousins and even friends of the bride. But I do hope I have not led many of my readers to believe that he ever ignores his own friends!

I had not dreamed of such a possibility until I read the following letter:

"Will you please tell me whether in the case where the bridegroom is going to be married at a distance from his home and is therefore (as you say is permissible) asking the bride's relatives and friends to be his attendants, this means that his own friends are to be ignored entirely? That is, doesn't he at least ask if some of them can come and tell them that they are his first choice?"

Of course he does! He certainly asks them and if they can possibly accept, they do so. If he is very well off, quite possibly he may take them all with him as his guests, and also provide their return transportation. But in the great majority of cases he can't do more than pay his own way. Sometimes not even his family can take the journey.

But at least he asks each of his best friends who would be his attendants were the wedding taking place in his own home town "Do you see any way of being in New York on December 20, to usher for me (or to be my best man)?" The answer is either, "Certainly, I'll be there" or, "You know I wish I could, but of course I can't."

A Last Look at the Serving Dish

Dear Mrs. Post: I agree with you in principle that it is polite to have one's guest served first, and I certainly would have my guest of honor served before me if I had a skilled butler in my kitchen and an expert butler in my dining room. But in my house I can not avoid having myself served first, because my one very excellent maid does sometimes slip and I find myself much more at ease when I've given the platter a look, and the food a quick taste while she waits beside me.

If anything is wrong, it is much simpler to whisper quietly to her if she is at my elbow rather than at my guest's elbow. So please don't be quite so final about something that is more practical for many people. In other situations I would agree with you!

Answer: In an article I have written on the origins of this hostess-first service, this reader's situation is fully described and explained. Even so, inspecting, and possibly rearranging or sending an under-done dish back to the kitchen for further cooking, bears very little resemblance to the impression given by the hostess who inconsiderately and mechanically takes first choice of everything herself.

To anyone who will send a self-addressed, stamped 3-cent envelope to me in care of this paper, I shall be very glad to send a reprint of this article.

Emily Post's booklet, "The Etiquette of Weddings," will answer all the questions about the ceremony and the reception that you have been asking yourself. Send for it, enclosing ten cents. Flatbush
Miss Rich of the New Paltz Normal School faculty addressed a combined group of P.T.A. members of the Flatbush and Lake Katrine units last Tuesday evening, speaking on the topic, "Mental Stimulation Through Reading."

The speaker showed how modern methods of teaching differ from those employed in our grandmother's day, especially in reading and the social studies. Miss Rich presented for the interest of the group an exhibit of a few of the more enticing of the newer texts in reading and in contrast copies of some of the earliest primers used in America.

At the close of the discussion a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments of homemade cookies and coffee were served by the 4-H Homemaking girls.

Business Girls' Club
Instead of the regular meeting of the Business Girls' Club this evening, the group is sponsoring a card party at the Y. W. C. A. for the benefit of the Service Fund. Reservations should be made at the "Y" office.

Spurs, Hercules and Morans Capture City League Games

Close Contests in Order at Auditorium; Elstons and Joneses Tangle in Prelim Tonight

At the municipal auditorium in the regular City League Basketball games, the Spurs, Hercules and Morans came through with victories. Three more games are scheduled tonight, one at the auditorium and two others at the M.J.M. School gym.

The important clash between the Joneses and Elstons will take place at the municipal auditorium tonight as the preliminary to the New York State Pro League game between the Kingston Recreation and Glens Falls.

Morans, sparked by the shooting of Britt and Snyder, scored a 29 to 13 victory over the Unnamed Five. Ricketson scored six points for the losing quintet. At the end of the first half the teams were tied 4-4.

Led by DuBois, center of the Spur team, they went out to pound a 29 to 17 triumph over the Trojans. DuBois tallied 14 points on six fields and two foul goals.

The final contest saw the Hercules Powdermen taking a close 21 to 17 game away from the Wimpy Aces. Two players, Bowers and Ten Broeck with nine and eight points respectively, did all the scoring for the losers. Prendergast pepped the winning five with eight markers.

Will Attempt Comeback

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP)—Fritz Zivic, former king of the welterweights, will start his attempted comeback in a 10-rounder with Phil Furr, hard-hitting Washington veteran here tonight.

Zivic, last of a fighting Pittsburgh family, won the welterweight title and lost it to Red Cochran. He was a 5-to-2 favorite for tonight's bout.

St. Josephs Score 25-24 Win In Catholic Basketball Loop

Sports Roundup
 By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Nov. 26 (AP)—We'll leave it to the hot stovers to decide whether Lou Boudreau showed more courage in accepting that job of managing Cleveland than Alva Bradley did in picking him. . . . One thing's sure, they'd both better be able to take it if the Indians don't come through. . . . Admitting that Lou has all kinds of ability, we just can't see a 24-year-old kid handling the team's bunch that practically rode Ossie Vitt out of town on a rail. . . . And don't forget, it was only a couple of weeks ago Bradley said he didn't think Boudreau could handle the manager's duties without impairing his play. . . . The Lawn Tennis Association didn't come out and say why Frank Kovacs was given the gate, but the announcement appeared at the bottom of a two-page "bulletin" covering in great detail the rules on expenses. . . . The tipoff on that one was when Frank and his beautiful bride didn't get a free honeymoon trip to South America with the team that's down there now.

 Missouri's football team has finished its regular season but the boys still are practicing. Guess why? . . . Hank Armstrong, who already has begun to talk like a manager instead of a fighter, says he definitely has made up his mind never to try fighting again. . . . Pro grid coaches get that wrinkle in their eyes when they hear about Edward's Vern Miller and Chub Peabody, even though they haven't any great hopes of signing them. . . . Dick Harlow won't say it in so many words, but he hints that it might be a good thing if some of the cerulean-corpuscles mingled with the tough pros for a season or two. . . . Leo (I'm Never Wrong) Durocher tells the boys that Hugh Casey missed a couple of signals in that "Mickey Owen" game. . . . St. Colmans Trip Knights 33 to 30; Turk Gets 23 Points; Wilbur Scores Easy Win

Two closely contested basketball games marked the Catholic Basketball League program last night at the Myron J. Michael School when St. Joseph's scored a 33 to 24 win over St. Peter's and St. Colman's took a 33 to 30 victory over the Knights of Columbus.

In another game the Holy Name of Wilbur chalked up an easy 47 to 18 victory over the Presentations. Kennedy led the scorers with 14 points.

With St. Peter's leading 16 to 13 after the first half St. Joseph's began to find the range of the basket in the next two periods and managed to pull out in front to win by 25 to 24.

The scoring for St. Joseph's winning quintet was divided fairly evenly between the entire squad. Sheehan paced the team with eight points, three fields and a foul shot. Brooks registered five. For St. Peter's Emmick had eight markers.

Another team that had a first half edge, failed to hold it in the final two periods of play. The Knights led St. Colmans by 17 to 14 in the first half and then went out in the final two periods to have it overcome. B. Watzka was the leading scorer for the winners with 14. Turk was the night's biggest scorer, dropping in 11 fields and a foul. The losers played with four men.

Wilbur had an easy time all night in downing the Presentations by 47 to 18. The winners enjoyed a 27 to 5 margin in the first half and then coasted to victory.

Kovacs Suspended For Violation of Amateur Code Rule

Bobby Riggs Also May Be Lost; Rumors Persist He and Kovacs Sign for Tour of U. S.

New York, Nov. 26 (AP)—The United States today was without an indoor champion, following Frank Kovacs' suspension for alleged violation of the amateur code, but don't be surprised if it loses its outdoor titleholder, Bobby Riggs, as well before you have completed your Christmas shopping.

Although everyone professed ignorance of it, rumors persisted that both Kovacs and Riggs had signed for a cross-country racket-swinging tour under management of Alexis Thompson, young millionaire owner of Philadelphia's professional football team.

Fred Perry, former British Davis Cupper, and Don Budge, former national champion but now a laundryman in New York, will complete the ensemble with William (Bill) Tilden, who will be 50 next month, as a possible member of the troupe.

Kovacs was suspended by the rules committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association last night without comment except that the group printed in full its rule on expense accounts above its 60-word statement concerning the suspension.

Although Kingston spectators rarely go in for taking up the cause of their favorite club in a pugnacious way, they seem to like their share of fistfists among the basketballers themselves, and are

Feature Game to Start 9:15 P. M.; Reddy or Solodare Will Be Referee

This is the night for the opening of the 1941-42 State Basketball League in Kingston. The schedule calls for the Kingston Recreation vs. Glens Falls, last year's champions of the state loop. Game time is 9:15 o'clock.

Having defeated the Bronx Yankees in an exhibition before 1,000 or more fans Thanksgiving night, by a score of 42 to 36, the Recs should draw a big house for the grand opening tonight, the City Recreation basketball committee thinks.

To complete the full cage program at the auditorium, there will be a City League game between the Joneses and Elstons at 7:30 o'clock. This preliminary contest is expected to furnish plenty of action.

As far as colorful playing in the main game is concerned, there should be plenty of thrills for the fans, because the State League is noted for its keen rivalry, although the season is still young. In one upstate contest to date, the course of the game, and once the action worked its way into the ranks of the onlookers and the "pop bottle" battalion went into action.

looking for all that's coming to them tonight.

That the Thanksgiving exhibition made a good impression is indicated by the advance seat sale for the Glens Falls encounter at the auditorium. The Recreation Department reported a larger number of ticket orders this morning than was recorded for the Thanksgiving game.

Reddy or Solodare
 For the starting whistle, which will be tooted by either Jack Reddy, who officiated for the holiday tilt, or Chuck Solodare, American League arbiter, the lineups probably will be as follows:

Kingston—Jimmy McNally (manager) and Jerry Rizzo, forwards; Johnny McGuirk, center; Carl Malfitano and Jim Buckley, guards; Tommy Weems, Willie Knapp and Goodwin will be in reserve.

Glens Falls—"Red" Conaty, ex-American League and Dudek, forwards; Turgeson, center; Brennan and Rosen, guards. Lenowitz will be the reserve.

President of the State League Ben Danforth, will be in Kingston for tonight's game. So will Jack Hogan, secretary of the loop.

Yale Instructor Regains Sight, Says It's Exciting

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 26 (AP)—Restored to sight after five years of blindness, Bernard M. Kellmurray, young instructor at Yale, finds the experience "tremendously exciting" although "it is hard to say what it feels like. I haven't gotten used to it myself."

Since 1936 Kellmurray had been able to see only waving traces of light until two weeks ago when he was sitting in his room and objects about him suddenly became faintly perceptible.

The first thing he saw was the wagging tail of his dog Shep, his eyes during the five years of darkness.

Gradually his sight grew stronger and today, with the aid of glasses, Kellmurray can read although not for long periods.

"My first impressions," Kellmurray said today, "were mixed and confused, but I found no difficulty in recognizing objects once familiar to me."

"The styles of the new autos are different, but not surprising. And how women's clothes have changed!"

"It is tremendously exciting to see for the first time people I have known so well in the past five years. It is like being an old grad coming back for a class reunion."

Two More Nurses Are Suggested By Dr. Ingraham

ment would assign a state nurse for a year to the city, which would bring the total number of nurses to four.

In his communication, Dr. Ingraham said that "in the process of arming our nation, it may prove necessary for governmental agencies to curtail certain functions. It has, however, been generally agreed that all levels of government must pay increasing attention to the health of its citizens during the trying times ahead. This is a vital part of the defense of America. The great need in public health in this state, and particularly in Kingston city has been quite concisely stated by Dr. Godfrey, state commissioner of health. The communication then quoted Dr. Godfrey as saying among other things, 'that it is my conviction that the success of many well formulated plans to prevent disease and reduce needless deaths depends upon an immediate increase in public health nurses throughout the entire state.'"

The communication continued by stating that in her work, the nurse is of great value to the health officer in his official capacity. By becoming well acquainted with her community, she very frequently learns of mild cases of communicable diseases which have not been visited by a physician, and is able to bring these conditions to the attention of the health officer.

Dr. Ingraham's Communication
The communication states: "The public health nurse and the wide range of her duties make her invaluable to the private physician especially in the field of home nursing. The first public health nurses started their work in this field of care of the sick in their homes because: Many cases of serious illness were either unsuitable for or were not admissible to a general hospital. The invalid or his family often objected to his being taken to a hospital. There were not and there never can be hospitals large enough and numerous enough to take in all cases of grave illness in a community. This is as true today as it was then, and we should have enough nurses to render this service in this community. She would be especially of service to the doctor in cases of pneumonia, in preparation for a home delivery, care of a premature baby and in those cases returning to their homes from the hospital or cases not admissible to a general hospital. As you are aware, Ulster county exclusive of Kingston city, last year provided $12,000.00 to provide nursing service. Because of the present situation, nurses are at a premium and it has proven difficult to secure the full complement of nurses for which the appropriation was made. However, within the past week, the county Board of Supervisors, has employed three additional nurses provided for and on January 1, 1942 the county will be provided with a total of twelve public health nurses to cover a population of 56,000 people. A very important factor in bringing the need of nursing care to the Board of Supervisors was the medical profession which adopted a unanimous resolution stressing the need of nursing service in Ulster county and which also sent special delegations to meet with the Board and discuss the matter.

At the present time, the city employs but one public health nurse. To provide a number equivalent to those employed in the county would require five additional nurses. However, in view of the fact that the city does provide nursing service for the school age child, we might consider that four additional nurses would supply service adequate to that appropriated by the county. It is realized, of course, that as a very minimum number which might give nearly adequate service, that three additional nurses would be necessary at this time.

It is recognized by health authorities throughout this country that one public health nurse can not effectively serve a population greatly in excess of 5,000. Were the city to employ two additional nurses, it would be possible to have our department assign a state nurse for a year to the city which would give a total of four nurses. Our department would also be able to provide the part-time of a supervising nurse to assist Dr. Sanford in initiating and supervising the service.

In order to secure a qualified nurse at the present time, it would be necessary to offer a salary of not less than $1,600.00. Provision should also be made for a certain amount of traveling expense and for clinic equipment and supplies. Altogether this would total about $2,000.00 per nurse. The amount necessary to provide for two nurses for a year would, therefore, be about $4,000.00.

I sincerely trust that you will find it possible to give serious consideration to this matter and bring it to the attention of the Board of Health and the Common Council.

Thanking you for your continued interest in health, I am, Sincerely yours,
HOLLIS INGRAHAM, M. D.

Freeman Buys First Christmas Seal Bond

The Christmas Seal Campaign headquarters announced today the first purchaser of the 1941 Christmas Seal Bond was the Freeman Publishing Co.

"Each successive year sees a greater demand for Christmas Seal Bonds," Judge Joseph M. Fowler, general chairman said.

The bonds resemble commercial bonds and run in denomination from $5 upward. They are labeled "The Crusade of the Double-Barred Cross, Christmas Seal Bond." They bear the imprint of the double-barred cross, international insignia of the fight against tuberculosis.

The text of the bond, entitled "Victory," reads: "Man's battle against tuberculosis is about to be decided. Victory is in sight."

"There was a time when we had to be contented with stopping the enemy, relieving the suffering and helping the victims. This still is necessary, but at last the time has come when we dare to think about a nation free from tuberculosis."

"Victory can be won if the American public will be as generous in the less spectacular future ahead, when there will be less and less tuberculosis, as it has been in the dramatic past when the disease killed members in almost every home."

"Your gift will further the cause of health, hasten the approach of the day when this communicable disease no longer will threaten your home. It will weaken the hold of tuberculosis on our people and strengthen the forces of defense."

Axis Shows Anger At U. S. Decision On Dutch Guiana

which the Fuehrer desires most is use of French colonies for military submarine bases, and the occupation of Dutch Guiana, next door to French Guiana is bound to make the French government pause for consideration.

One purpose of sending our troops to Guiana presumably is to be in position to keep the Germans out of the French colony. That might provide the Nazis with a useful submarine base, especially if the Nazis should force Vichy to give them Dakar, across the way on the western hump of Africa.

Filthy, Stinking Spot

It is to be hoped, however, that it won't be necessary for any of our boys to be sent into French Guiana. It is a filthy, stinking spot which festers with disease under the killing equatorial sun. I've seen a lot of hell-holes in various parts of the world, but French Guiana heads the list. The notorious Devil's Island, which is part of this colony, is a paradise compared with the mainland.

French Guiana is nothing but a penal colony. Its sole industry is watching the prisoners wear their lives out in this inhospitable zone of utter despair. Cayenne is the only settlement of any consequence, and of its ten thousand unhappy inhabitants at least twenty-five per cent are dragging themselves about the dirty streets with leprosy, coming into contact with those who are unaffected. The town has no sanitary arrangements and sewage is dumped into the pot-holed streets.

The whole damnable colony is filled with terrible diseases, which are spread by mosquitoes and huge vampire bats. There are more ways of meeting horrid death in the jungle which runs close to the town than the worst nightmare could conjure up, for the place swarms with poisonous insects, snakes and other man-killers.

Even in Dutch Guiana leprosy and syphilis are rife, despite the constant battle waged against these diseases by the authorities. So far as concerns the dangers of the jungle—that is, all the country outside the settlements—they are the same as in French Guiana.

Duty in Dutch Guiana will be no sinecure. However, our army medical people have had wide experience in Panama, the Philippines and other hot climes, and undoubtedly know what they are heading into.
